It is related that he at first forbade his soldiers to plunder the conquered nations, because these were their own countrymen; and the story at least perfectly illustrates his attitude, which was the most effective possible, even in a strategic point of view. His management of the Greek States during the Asiatic campaigns was masterly; on the one hand, losing no opportunity of winning their gratitude by restoring their exiles, releasing their envoys to Darius after Issus, liberating and honoring their Ionian cities, sending trophies to their temples, paying devotion to their traditional gods and heroes everywhere, and specially encouraging the democratic spirit, as in his present to Athens of the statues of the patriot tyrannicides, Harmodius and Aristogeiton; while, on the other hand, keeping in custody the Spartan agents at the Persian Court (the Greeks who had entered Persian service after...
